CBSE EDITION

Message From the Creative Team Head

Welcome to the April, 2022 issue of CBSE Newsletter. Please excuse the inclusion of a photograph in the editorial message. It's a crime and I stand guilty. But it does serve a couple of purposes. One, images are very powerful in conveying a message and two, it will help me make my point: application based education.

When they taught me Pythagorean Theorem in the school, I didn't get it, up until recently when I stumbled upon a YouTube video demonstrating how to measure the wood while constructing a common roof rafter. Turns out the theorem is pretty straightforward and maybe it was the name that made it look like a Herculean task for me. All my maths teacher had to do was show me the application and it would have stayed with me for the rest of my life. I don't blame the teacher. I don't see any good reason for him to not to do that. He mustn't be aware about it as well.

Fortunately we have come a long way since then and there's no dearth and accessibility of literature about application based education. And at The Gaudium we ensure to include this concept right from your child's journey with us.

It doesn't stop there. Our management makes sure to conduct/arrange workshops for teachers to strengthen their pedagogical skills vis-a-vis the inclusion of application based teaching. What it results in are children with optimum cognitive development and critical thinking. Apart from me having to write this editorial I am personally invested in it. When today's children receive the education the way they deserve, they will definitely keep this loop going on and we'll all have a country filled with happy minds.

Our teachers know how to come down to the level of children and become the part of the learning process. However, it doesn't absolve you of your duties. It's always the collective efforts that matter and as our partners in education we need your constant support.

We wish you a happy and healthy summer break and will be waiting for the day school comes back to life when the children will resume their journey with us.

CORE VALUES

Morning Assembly

Our morning assemblies are a time for reflection and a platform to express and exchange ideas directed towards achieving our vision. Assemblies on Wednesday's are ushering endless possibilities of starting the day with mindful breathing exercises to put the body and mind at ease. This month the assemblies were conducted on the core value of 'Integrity'. Students reflected and jotted down how the assemblies have made them more accountable for their actions and enhanced the joys of celebrating little things. We firmly believe the time spent on introspection during the assembly hour goes a long way in shaping the character of the young learners and we are taking a plunge in the right direction.

MINDFULNESS AND WELL-BEING

Sports Promotes Mindfulness and Well-Being

Besides being a powerful ally for our physical health, exercise is just as instrumental in good mental health. By effectively combating stress and anxiety, the sports classes have had positive effect on long-term memory, reasoning and critical thinking abilities, as well as the concentration levels of our learners

Alone we can do so little; together we can do so much." – Helen Keller

The foundation of a solid long-term collaboration is mutual respect and understanding. It is imperative that teachers work in unison in the best interest of the students and these bonding sessions where we appreciate, acknowledge and celebrate each other's personal and professional achievement go a long way in building sincerity and trust in the team.
